The Lawyers Other Lawyers Call
A guide to the most respected legal practitioners in the city.

John McMillan
Gowling, Henderson

John McMillan looks even younger than 35, but he is a 15-year-old Crown attorney for Scarborough. John McMillan has established a reputation as a skillful andscrupulously fair prosecutor in serious criminal cases. In the spring of 1992, he argued the case against Robert Boulware, who was convicted of the second degree murder of Elizabeth Bain, even though Bain's body has never been found. (The case is currently under appeal.) McMillan based his argument on the prosecution's anticipation that Crown attorneys approach their work with a "sniff at all costs" attitude that is both misleading and unfair.

Crown and Thorns

Alan D. Gold
gold & Farrow

Alan Gold is a lawyer with a reputation for intellectual rigor, since anything less than perfection is impossible. His clients consider him a model for other lawyers. His case against auto-insurers, for instance, limits access to the courts for cases that arise from car accidents. Other cases, such as defamation and libel, have become his specialty, attracting young lawyers interested in establishing their reputations.

Even in big corporate firms, lawyers rarely return to the courts.
